Christian Apologetics

Unit Outline

About this Unit Outline

This unit outline contains information essential to finding your way around the unit Christian Apologetics. It provides a structure for your learning, giving details of lecture topics, assessment requirements, and key resources.

SEMESTER 1 2018

Important Notice

While every care has been taken to ensure accuracy in the information given below, it is the personal responsibility of each student to check the current ACT Handbook, copies of which may be found in the Library or online at the ACT's website: www.acttheology.edu.au

It is very important that students plan their time carefully to ensure that reading and especially assignments receive adequate attention and so as to prevent a bottleneck of work at the end of the semester.

It is very important that all quoted material in assignments be properly footnoted and acknowledged. The attention of students is drawn to the ACT's Academic Misconduct Policy, as well as ACT Late Penalties Policy and Extensions Policy, all of which are available on the ACT's website. Failure to comply with the standards required will incur penalties as outlined in the relevant ACT Policies.

The attention of students is also drawn to the section in the current ACT Handbook, headed "Guidelines for Essays in Coursework Units" (see also the QTC Student Handbook). All essays and assignments should comply with these standards.

Information about this unit

Unit description

This unit is designed to help students explore and develop proficiency in the discipline of Christian apologetics, the task of defending the Christian faith from attacks and commending it against rival claimants. This involves examination of the biblical and theological foundations for apologetics, philosophical issues regarding the nature of truth and when there is epistemological warrant for beliefs, and some awareness of the history of apologetics throughout the centuries. From there the unit will consider the arguments for and against the major 'schools' or approaches to apologetics in the current era so that students may make an informed decision as to which approach best commends the gospel on its own terms. With this framework in place, the unit will then turn to the various classical arguments for the existence of God from natural theology, arguments for the Christian faith arising from Scripture's claims, understanding the nature of various critiques on Christian claims and responses that have been made to these, as well as critical interaction with some of the main alternatives to Christianity.

Learning Outcomes

PE420 Learning Outcomes

On completion of the unit, students will:

Know and understand:

1. Apologetics as the defence and commendation of the Christian Gospel
2. Apologetics, theology and the nature of truth
3. Critiques of Christian faith
4. Alternatives to Christian belief
5. Strategies to defend and commend Christian faith

Be able to:

1. Discuss the nature of Christian apologetics
2. Assess critiques of Christianity from a Christian perspective
3. Evaluate alternatives to Christian belief from a Christian perspective
4. Engage in Christian apologetics
5. Present an analytical evidence-based argument or perspective

Be in a position to:

1. Integrate responses to critiques of Christianity into biblical interpretation and Christian thinking
2. Use Christian responses to critiques of Christianity for personal understanding and in ministry contexts
3. Defend and commend the truth claims of the Christian faith

PE620 Learning Outcomes

On completion of the unit, students will:

Know and understand:

1. Apologetics as the defence and commendation of the Christian Gospel
2. Apologetics, theology and the nature of truth
3. Critiques of Christian faith
4. Alternatives to Christian belief
5. Strategies to defend and commend Christian faith
6. Historic and contemporary approaches to Christian apologetics

Be able to:

1. Analyse the nature of Christian apologetics
2. Compare and contrast critiques of Christianity from a Christian perspective
3. Critique alternatives to Christian belief from a Christian perspective
4. Engage in Christian apologetics
5. Present a critical evidence-based argument or perspective
6. Evaluate historic and contemporary approaches to Christian apologetics

Be in a position to:

1. Integrate responses to critiques of Christianity into biblical interpretation and Christian thinking
2. Use Christian responses to critiques of Christianity for personal understanding and in ministry contexts
3. Defend and commend the truth claims of the Christian faith

How this Unit Contributes to the Course

This unit is designed to provide a summary of the theological underpinnings of Christian Apologetics, together with an introduction to different applied approaches to evangelical apologetics. We will also consider some important theological and philosophical approaches to apologetics. It is intended that this unit will assist students to be able to better know, worship and declare the God who is revealed in Scripture above all as Father, Son and Holy Spirit, and who has acted supremely towards humanity in the work of his incarnate Son. This unit aims to help integrate the findings of units in biblical studies and provide a foundation for ministry practices developed in the practical theology units.

Pre-requisites and Co-requisites

PE420 is an advanced-level (400-level) elective unit in the Diploma of Theology, Diploma of Ministry, Associate Degree of Theology, Bachelor of Theology and Bachelor of Ministry courses. PE620 is an advanced-level elective unit in the Master of Divinity, Graduate Diploma of Divinity and Graduate Certificate of Divinity courses.

Students enrolling in this unit need to have successfully completed two units (8cps) of 300 level OT and/or NT and /or CH and/or PE and/or TH.

How this unit is organized & what we expect of you

The unit is taught week by week right through the Semester of 13 weeks. There are three classes each week, each of 50 minutes duration. Some of these classes will be in traditional lecture format, others will be variously seminar-type discussions involving the whole group, small group discussions, or in-class student exercises.

This unit is worth 4 credit points towards your degree. At Bachelor level, a 4 cp unit is considered to require a total time commitment of 6-8 hrs per week, and 7-9 hours at MDiv level. Please speak with the lecturer as a matter of urgency if you are finding that you need to consistently spend more time than this on PE420/620.

Students are expected to attend all lectures, complete any set reading and complete any assessment tasks by the relevant due date. Please do be in touch with the QTC Registrar as soon as you can if you anticipate having any difficulties with your assessments or with meeting the due date. Note: Assignments submitted late and without an extension granted will incur late penalties (please refer to student handbook). Full attendance at lectures is required for all units in the ACT; repeated absences without reason and permission may result in application of the ACT's policy that your final assessment for this unit will not be marked, resulting in failure of this unit

PE420 Assessments

Assessments are submitted online via Moodle

In order to pass the unit, you must submit all assessment pieces and attain a mark of at least 50% for the unit as a whole.

Unless an extension has been applied for and granted in accordance with the Late Penalty Policy found in the QTC Handbook, where a student submits an assessment past its due date, the assessment marks will be reduced at the rate of 3% of the total possible marks for the Assessment item per calendar day, up to 14 days late.

Your essays must also be within 10% of the required word limit and your ability to meet this requirement will also be taken into account in determining your mark. QTC seeks to prepare you for ministry, and in ministry delivering presentations on time and within an acceptable length are essential skills.

ASSESSMENT TASK(S)	DESCRIPTION
2500 Word Research Essay 50% of Final Grade	Write a 2500 word essay on ONE of the following topics: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Describe and critically evaluate the apologetic strategy in one substantial extant work by one of the Apologists. 2. Outline some of the key challenges to the Christian faith offered by the New Atheism and some of the ways in which these challenges can be met. 3. Is it possible to defend the rationality of the Christian faith without implicitly endorsing an 'I understand in order to believe' view of the relationship of faith and reason? 4. What difference, if any, is there in apologetic practice between arguing from general revelation and offering a natural theology? What are the implications of your answer for how we should undertake Apologetics? 5. Critically evaluate the usefulness of Aquinas 'five ways' as an argument for the existence of God. 6. Critically evaluate two theodicies for their utility in responding to the problems of evil and/or suffering. 7. Critically evaluate the usefulness of the argument from the fine tuning of the universe for the existence of God
Take Home Exam 2500 words 50% of Final Grade	The Exam response will involve: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Letter to the editor for the newspaper (500 words) 2. Brief tract to be handed out to interested non-Christians (1000 words) 3. Item in the church bulletin (1000 words) All three items will have a choice of topics selected from material covered in the unit to be the subject of that part of the assessment task. Students will receive the Take-Home Exam questions one week before the due date.

Research Essay 3,000 words 50% of Final Grade	Write a 3000 word essay on ONE of the following topics: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Describe and critically evaluate Athanasius' apologetic strategy in Against the Gentiles. 2. Outline the nature of the challenge to the Christian faith presented in Hume's An Enquiry Concerning Human Understanding and some of the ways in which these challenges can be met. 3. How should a 'faith seeking understanding' view of the relationship of faith and reason influence our approach to Apologetics? 4. Should Apologetics focus more on arguments from creation or from special revelation (e.g. Scripture, the cross)? Why? 5. Critically evaluate the usefulness of the ontological argument and the argument that belief in God is a basic belief as arguments for the existence of God. 6. How should a Christian apologist respond to the challenge of the problems of evil and suffering? 7. Critically evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of the argument for the existence of God from the existence of morality.

Guide to Assessments

Research Essay

In this unit we are looking for the research essay to offer a sustained persuasive argument. This involves several factors.

First, it requires you to have articulated a clear answer to the question—preferably one that you have written out in a sentence or two before you begin writing the essay. This answer should be clearly stated in the essay—often in the introduction, but certainly in the conclusion. Stronger essays are ones whose answers demonstrate one or more of: grasping the essence of the issues, offering something comprehensive, demonstrating a deeper understanding of the issues rather than one that, while accurate, is at a more introductory level, and showing an understanding of the implications of the answer.

Second, it requires you to offer evidence for your answer. There should be information in the essay that is relevant to the question and which supports your answer. Some essays may also want to discuss evidence that could be used to reject your answer and show why it doesn't actually do that when understood correctly.

Third, it requires you to show how the evidence you include actually does support your answer. A common mistake students make is to include information—quotes, Scriptural passages or the like—and do nothing with them but to have them in the essay as though their significance for their answer is self-evident. It almost never is to the reader (however much it might be to the writer) without explicit commentary that takes the reader by the hand and explains how that information helps supports the case they are making.

Fourth, it requires you to try and persuade your reader that your answer is the correct one. Good apologetic essays don't treat the exercise as a case of 'show and tell'—where the idea is simply to get all the ideas and information out and the order in which they come doesn't matter. Instead, the writer thinks about how to organize their material so as to build a case for their answer in the most persuasive fashion they can.

Finally, it requires you to identify what material is critical for the type of question you are answering, and show how this source stands behind your answer. The challenge in apologetics is that potentially there are a wide range of possible reasons to give the answers that you do—the teaching of Scripture, theological considerations, philosophical issues or the findings of reasoned argument, reflection upon the world—all could potentially be invoked to justify an answer, and better answers will demonstrate an awareness of when to invoke support from these different resources and the kind of resources that they can offer, as well as where they are limited. There should also be signs that you engaged with scholars and critics of your answer.

Take Home Exam

The three tasks that comprise the take home exam are intended to assess your ability to do apologetics in practice. Most of the advice given for the research essay applies to the tasks involved in the take home exam, with three additional dimensions.

First, that the items need to be written in good popular prose rather than good academic prose. Vocabulary, sentence structure and the like should be chosen with a view to writing something that is easily read by an average reasonably well-educated reader.

Second, that each of the tasks involves a slightly different 'genre' of writing and a different audience. A letter to the editor, a blurb in a church bulletin, and an apologetic tract to be read by an interested seeker are all speaking to different audiences using slightly different 'rules' of persuasion. Identifying one's goals and the kind of arguments that will be persuasive to differing audiences is an important part of this task, one that demonstrates your ability to not simply grasp the theory of apologetics but also your proficiency with the practical task.

Finally, that this task remains an essentially academic exercise, and so while there needs to be a serious attempt made to produce an actual piece of writing along the lines set, nonetheless the main focus will be on the content of the argument rather than the rhetorical and polemical constructions used to drive the arguments home. Most words should be used for offering apologetic arguments rather than communication devices that harness minimal actual apologetic content.
