Foundations for Systematic Theology

Unit Outline

About this Unit Outline

This unit outline contains information essential to finding your way around the unit Foundations of Systematic Theology. It provides a structure for your learning, giving details of lecture topics, assessment requirements, and key resources.

SEMESTER 2 2018

Important notice

While every care has been taken to ensure accuracy in the information given below, it is the personal responsibility of each student to check the current ACT Handbook, copies of which may be found in the Library or online at www.acttheology.edu.au

It is very important that students plan their time carefully to ensure that reading and especially assignments receive adequate attention and so as to prevent a bottleneck of work at the end of the semester.

It is very important that all quoted material in assignments be properly footnoted and acknowledged. The attention of students is drawn to the ACT's Academic Misconduct Policy, as well as ACT Late Penalties Policy and Extensions Policy, all of which are available on the ACT website. Failure to comply with the standards required will incur penalties as outlined in the relevant ACT Policies.

The attention of students is also drawn to the section in the current ACT Handbook, headed "Guidelines for Essays in Coursework Units" (see also the QTC Student Handbook). All essays and assignments should comply with these standards.

Information about this unit

Unit description

This preparatory half unit examines the importance of systematic theology, takes a bird's eye view of Christian doctrine and gives the learner skills on 'how to do theology'.

Learning Outcomes

TRT32 Learning Outcomes

1. To introduce students to the aims and methods of systematic theology.
2. To provide students with clear overview of the whole scope of Christian doctrine.
3. To do this with a view to:
 - Preparation for Systematics in the following years
 - The integration of doctrine, church history, biblical study, and Christian life and practice

Upon completion of this unit students will be able to:

1. Understand what the discipline of systematic theology is
2. Understand why systematic theology exists as a discipline
3. Be aware of the major topics generally covered in systematic theology
4. Understand why the major topics are what they are
5. Grasp how the major topics relate to each other
6. Understand basic issues of method in doing systematic theology
7. Be able to present their own theological reflections on a topic

7. Be able to present their own theological reflections on a topic
8. Be able to discuss and evaluate recent developments in Systematic Theology

How this Unit Contributes to the Course

Theology can be intimidating for beginners. Many students have been overwhelmed by the diversity of opinions and sheer volume of information to comprehend. Studying this unit in your first year of theological studies helps you establish a foundation of concepts and terminology on which to build a theological framework and should help to equip you for 400/600 level theology units usually completed later in your course. For those doing a one-year course, this unit helps to establish the foundations for good theological thinking.

Pre-requisites and Co-requisites

This unit is a Type B Elective. It caters for students studying for the following accredited courses of the Australian College of Theology: BTh/BMin/AssocDegTh/DipTh/DipMin and MDiv/GradDipDiv/GradCertDiv.

This unit is being taught at QTC at foundation level (300/500 level), therefore there are no prerequisite requirements.

How this unit is organized & what we expect of you

In Semester 2 of 2018, this unit will be taught on five Thursdays at intervals during the semester. The lecture dates are:

Thursdays 19 July, 26 July, 23 August, 11 October and 18 October.

You must arrange in advance to be present on all of these days.

There will be four hours of lectures on each of these days, commencing at 11.45am and concluding at 4.15pm, with a break for lunch between 12.35pm and 1.25pm. These arrangements will provide a total of 20 hours of contact time involving lectures, class discussion time and work in small groups.

This unit is a half-unit, worth 2 credit points (cps) towards your degree or diploma. A 2cp unit is considered to require an average total time commitment of approximately 4 hours per week outside of class time.

Students are required to attend all lectures, complete any set pre-reading and complete any assessment tasks by the relevant due date.

Teaching staff

LECTURER

Rev Dr Peter Jensen

Principal of Moore Theological College, Sydney (1985-2001), and Anglican Archbishop of Sydney (2001-2013).

For general questions about this unit, especially prior to the commencement of lectures, please contact QTC Registrar, Ted Brennan, who will arrange for your questions to be answered. registrar@qtc.edu.au

QTC Theology Lecturer, Dr Mark Baddeley, will be the on-site Coordinator for academic matters relating to this unit. mbaddeley@qtc.edu.au

If you have general questions about the unit or the arrangements for the unit, please contact, in the first instance, Mark Baddeley or QTC Registrar, Ted Brennan.

TRT32 Assessments

Assessments are submitted online via Moodle

In order to pass the unit, you must submit all assessment pieces and attain a mark of at least 50% for the unit as a whole.

Unless an extension has been applied for and granted in accordance with the Late Penalty Policy found in the QTC Handbook, where a student submits an assessment past its due date, the assessment marks will be reduced at the rate of 3% of the total possible marks for the Assessment item per calendar day, up to 14 days late.

Your assessment pieces must be within 10% of the prescribed word limit. Assessment pieces that are more than 10% longer than the prescribed word limit will be returned to students for reduction in length and resubmission. A Late Penalty of 3% per day will apply, commencing on the day that the assessment piece is returned to you for correction.

Guide to Assessments

Annotated list of Biblical passages

The challenge of this part of the task involves two dimensions—the selection of the biblical texts and the comments you make upon them.

In the selection of the texts we are looking for the widest possible grouping of texts that are significant in establishing the Bible's teaching on this topic. This means we are looking for texts to be included that have something genuinely important to say on the topic, something not already covered by other texts that are included.

In the comments made upon the texts we are looking for the comments to clearly explain how the texts contribute to the Bible's teaching on that topic: i.e. what each text actually adds to our picture of the Bible's teaching on the matter. We don't want any comments of a 'general' nature on the texts - about authorship, context, the main idea of the passage or the like - only what it contributes to our understanding of the topic you have chosen.

The challenge of this task is that the need for breadth in texts chosen is in tension with the need for depth in explanations. This means that we are looking for judicious selectivity - only the most significant texts, and only the most significant comments to be made on texts.

Reviews

This task is looking for two main skills to be demonstrated: your skill in reading a document, and your ability to reflect critically on what you have read.

In showing your reading ability we need to be able to see a clear description of the content of what you have read. This involves selectivity - you need to pick out what you thought were the most important points said, for you cannot simply repeat everything. It also involves looking at how the writer has structured their material and/or how their argument builds and develops and helping your reader have insights into the way the content of the document is organized and how it functions in his argument.

Demonstrating some grasp of the writer's purpose is also important. In showing your critical reflection we need to be able to see an independent mind that judiciously weighs the strengths and weaknesses of the document. This does not require you to be positive or negative about the document - a critical reflection can be a deeply appreciative reflection. It does require you to be able to say why (i.e. give reasons for) you think the work you read is valuable - and where its value lies - and to indicate where you think it said something wrong, offered a weak argument, adopted an approach of arguing or structuring that had limitations with it, or was unclear, and to identify any aspects of the topic that were not included in the document and that you believe needed to be for it to accomplish its purpose.

For historical documents

Some of the documents included are 'historical', being written in an earlier period than the last one hundred years or so. Reviewing these involves demonstrating an additional skill - of reading them as a historical document rather than a modern one. As this is a doctrine unit, and not a church history unit, this is less important than it would be for church history - we are more interested in what the documents contribute to our understanding of the teaching of Scripture than our understanding of the Church's past. Nonetheless, reading them well and critically reflecting on them will involve appreciating how they would have functioned for their original audience, and not reading them as though they are written to a modern audience.

Talk Outline

This task is looking for your ability to harness your work in producing the bibliographies and reviews to formulate a piece of Christian teaching on the topic. There are three possible areas to try and address – seek to be comprehensive in explaining the topic, seek to ensure that the audience understands the essential core of the topic by discussing it at some depth, seek to show why the topic matters and/or what its implications are. Usually trying to do all three equally will result in doing none of them well, so again, selectivity is the key. Ideally the talk outline will reflect which biblical texts you have identified in your bibliography, and your critical reflections on the strengths and weakness of the approaches to the topic undertaken by the documents you reviewed.

Reflection on talk outline (TRT52 only)

Here we are looking for your ability to self-reflect and explain yourself. In particular, we are looking for you to explain the issues raised in the previous paragraph - how your selection of the biblical texts helped determine how you went about constructing your talk (e.g. which texts you decided to use and why) and how your reviews helped inform your approach (e.g. where did you say something like 'that worked well, and I can use that in my talk', and where did you say, 'that needed something more, so I'll make sure I don't have that weakness in my talk?').
